Question Two: Read the passage and give full answers to the questions below.
(8 marks)

At two minutes to noon on 1 September 1923, the great clock in Tokyo stopped. Tokyo bay shook as if a huge rug had been pulled from under it. Towering above the bay, the 4,000 metre Mount Fuji stood above a deep trench in the sea. It was from the trench that the earthquake came, at a magnitude of 8.3 on the Richter scale.

The sea drew back for a few moments. Then a huge wave swept over the city. Boats were carried in land, and buildings and people were dragged out to the sea. The tremors dislodged part of a hillside, which gave way, brushing trains, stations and bodies into the water below. Large sections of the sea-bed sank 400 metres, the land rose by 250 metres in some places and sank on others. Three massive shocks wrecked the cities of Tokyo and Yokohama and, during the next six hours, there were 171 aftershocks. The casualties were enormous, but there were also some lucky survivors. The most remarkable was a woman who was having a bath in her roomat the Tokyo Grand Hotel. As the hotel collapsed, she and her bath gracefully descended to the street, having both her and the bathwater intact.
